McElroy Names Boss for Projects in Outer Space

Taped Data Studied In Effort to Learn Cause of Atlas Blast

Some Talk of Possibility of Destruction by 'Ham' Signal

Cape Canaveral, Fla. — (AP) — The air force and the manufacturer studied thousands of feet of taped data today for clues to the cause of an explosion that destroyed an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile after less than four minutes of flight yesterday.

A spokesman for Convair division of General Dynamics Corp., San Diego, Calif., said the cause of the self-destruction was still a mystery. He said the cause might not be known until completion of a thorough job of reading the information, if at all.

This information was recorded on tape sent back by radio from the instruments aboard the giant missile.

Some persons here speculated that interference by a radio signal, possibly from a "ham" amateur set, had caused the Atlas to destroy itself.

Safeguards Provided

The Convair spokesman, Win Cady, said the Atlas "does have a destruction package in it operated by radio."

He said there are safeguards on it to prevent accidental operation.

"We could not be 100 per cent sure in saying that this did not happen, but it would have

Florida Having Worst Winter In Its History

Crops and Resorts Affected Severely By Cold Weather

Miami — (AP) — Florida is enduring its worst winter in history. It braced itself today for new assaults of cold weather on resort and farming industries.

Low temperatures and rain already have killed cattle, blighted lush citrus groves and winter vegetables and put tourists to flight.

The president of the Florida Cattlemen's association said yesterday he had never known cattle "to be in such bad shape" — with the worst month of the year starting in the face.

J. O. Pearce, Jr., said "February is always our worst winter month," and predicted 275,000 cattle would die in the next five weeks because of lack of feed.

Starvation Problem

"So far the cattle that have died have died because of the weather, but starvation will enter the picture between now and spring. Cold weather through February would mean a very serious condition around the middle of March," Pearce said.

Cattle have weakened because Florida's three freezes killed grass. What grass wasn't killed was submerged by water from heavy rains.

"The cattle bed down in the water or on damp ground and when morning comes they have pneumonia and can't get up," Pearce said. "Another cold, rainy night with wind would just about ruin all of us."

The U. S. agriculture department has extended to Feb. 28 the time in which stockmen in 11 Florida counties can get free government feed grains for distressed livestock.

Roy W. Johnson, Vice President of GE, to be Program Administrator

Washington — (AP) — Secretary of Defense McElroy has picked a boss for outer space projects and handed the new advanced research projects agency (ARPA) its assignment of developing weapons of tomorrow.

McElroy said Johnson's salary has not yet been decided, but Johnson hadn't discussed the matter and that it didn't seem "particularly important to Mr. Johnson."

The defense chief said he still is looking for a "most highly qualified scientist" to head a group to provide technical direction within ARPA.

At a news conference in New York, Johnson said he was not a scientist or a technical man, but an administrator.

"I'm going to delegate authority," he said. "I'm going to hold people whom I delegate responsible. I'm going to pick capable people."

Johnson estimated it might take 18 months to two years to get the ARPA running effectively.

The ARPA is intended to coordinate space research in the defense department and eliminate interservice rivalry in this field.

McElroy's directive setting up ARPA provides that the agency may farm out particular space projects to individual services or tap the services for scientists and technicians. It also is authorized to get help from business firms, educational, research or scientific institutions.

ARPA is given authority to acquire or build facilities and equipment for development and test projects. However, existing military facilities "shall be used to the maximum extent practicable," the directive says.

Congress earlier this week voted $10 million to get ARPA started. In addition, the administration is asking $340 million to run the agency in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Firm Accused Of Changing Auto Mileage

Milwaukee — (AP) — In what was believed the first warrant of its kind issued here, an automobile firm was accused Friday of turning back the mileage indicator on a used car. The charge carries a maximum fine of $10,000 upon conviction.

Issued by Deputy Dist. Atty. Aladin De Brozzo, the warrant names Ennis Motors, Inc. A spokesman for the firm said he knew nothing about the charge.

Indicator Changed

De Brozzo said that late last month a motorist traded his 1955 car at Ennis and noted the mileage at 50,007. The man returned later to see what had been done to the car and found the indicator showed only 22,118 miles. There was no question it was the same car, De Brozzo said.

The motorist communicated with the Better Business Bureau, and his letter was turned over to the state traffic patrol which investigated and sought the warrant which De Brozzo said was the first he could recall on the charge.

State law requires that each used car sold must be accompanied by an affidavit from the former owner showing the exact odometer reading, or the indicator filed Friday in county court must be turned back to zero.

Did Chores for Teacher, She Leaves Him $20,000

Milwaukee — (AP) — A 23-year-old man learned Friday he will receive about $20,000 from the estate of a retired school teacher because he shoveled snow and cut grass for her years ago.

The money was left to Norman Riley by the late Miss Lilla Braband, 82, a South Division high school teacher for 40 years. In her will Miss Braband described Norman as a "neighboring boy who was very kind and helpful to me."

Miss Braband left an estate valued at $298,668, according to an inventory filed Friday in county court.

Awarded $11,000 For False Arrest

Milwaukee — (AP) — Mrs. Jerry Lee Masoncup, 21, was awarded $11,000 in damages Friday night by a circuit court jury that found three Milwaukee policemen had no right to arrest her on a vagrancy charge two years ago.

Mrs. Masoncup, of Park Ridge, Ill., sued for false arrest, claiming her reputation was injured when police took her out of an apartment on Aug. 31, 1955, and jailed her overnight.

Defendant policemen were Sgt. Jerold Wohlfel, Edwin Stolz and Wallace Schindhelm, who admitted during the trial before Judge Francis X. Sweik that the arrest was made without a warrant and that Mrs. Masoncup's room was searched.

They said they were called to the apartment by the landlord who noted Mrs. Masoncup's auto had Illinois license plate. They said they charged her with vagrancy when they found she had no visible means of support.

Probe Negro's Story of 5 Slayings in 4 States

Officials From Ohio and Alabama Will Question Suspect Held in Virginia

Richmond, Va. — (AP) — "Every body I ever robbed I killed," With these words Jeremiah McCray, a 25-year-old itinerant Negro, admitted five slayings, state police said. All the victims were white.

As McCray's tale of a killing spree that started in 1956 unfolded here yesterday, police checked with authorities in Ohio, Georgia and Alabama to confirm the details.

Officers from at least two of these states were heading for Richmond to question McCray on unsolved murders.

Sheriff Orland Hays of Fayette county, Ohio, left for Richmond yesterday. He said details given by McCray on a slaying in Ohio corresponded with the death of Mrs. Sarah DeWitt, an 86-year-old Washington Court House widow.

Mrs. DeWitt was hacked to death with a hatchet in her home last July 2.

In Anniston, Ala., Sheriff Roy Snead of Calhoun county said he would leave today or tomorrow for Richmond to check McCray's story of a killing in his area. Mrs. Daisy F. Gilbert, 73, was beaten to death Feb. 27, 1956, in the small concrete-block home in which she lived alone.

McCray was brought to state police headquarters for questioning about the death of Mrs. Jeannette M. Griffin, 49-year-old widow of Ladysmith, Va., about 35 miles north of Richmond.

Mrs. Griffin was beaten to death last Sunday night. Investigator R. H. Kauffel asked McCray if he were telling the truth.

"Well, I can tell you all about that one in Colonial Heights," McCray replied.

Mrs. Virginia Maclin Stevens, an elderly Colonial Heights, Va., widow, was slain Jan. 9. Her body was found sprawled on the floor of her bedroom. Another person was charged in her death but this charge was later dismissed.

Madison Has Good View of Sputnik This Morning

Madison — (AP) — Madison early risers had an excellent view of Russia's Sputnik II today. It passed directly over the city.

Members of the state highway patrol radio center located atop the state office building on the shore of Lake Monona said the globe-circling earth satellite "looked like an orange." They said it did not appear to have a tail and was in view for more than two minutes. It moved from south to north at about 6:12 a. m.

The Russian satellite also was seen by Newscaster Charles Heath of Radio Station WCWC at Ripon.

Those who missed seeing the Sputnik this morning will have another chance early Monday. The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., said today that Sputnik II will cross northern Illinois, eastern Wisconsin and northern Michigan about 5:41 a. m. Monday.

Barrel of Cyanide Lost on British Road

Liverpool, England — (AP) — A barrel containing enough cyanide to kill half a million persons has been lost along a 14-mile road. Police said today the cyanide is in pellets that children might mistake for candy.

The barrel rolled off a truck some time during a trip yesterday from the Liverpool docks to a factory at Widnes.

Two Youths Killed in Car-Train Collision

On Way to Church Rally, Auto Strikes 400 South of Neenah

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Two youths on their way to a church rally were killed in a car-train collision at 7:50 this morning on Winnebago County Trunk GG in the town of Vinland.

Their deaths brought the county's toll from traffic accidents this year to four.

Dead are Virginia Mary Geer, 19, daughter of Dean W. Geer of the Geer-Murray Advertising company, Oshkosh, and Charles Alton Baxter, 20, of Poynette. Their car collided with the southbound Chicago and North Western passenger train which had just left Neenah.

Baxter drove from Poynette this morning to pick up Miss Geer and they were planning to pick up two more young people in Appleton before driving on to a church youth rally at Stevens Point, according to her parents.

The bodies were taken to Mercy hospital, sheriff's police said. The young people died instantly.

The car, a 1957 sedan, was thrown about 100 feet from the point of impact. Police were unable to say what caused the accident.

The accident was reported to the Winnebago county sheriff's department at 7:59 by the North Western station master at Oshkosh, who received the first report from the train crew. The train did not stop after the collision.

D. F. Liesch, relief dispatcher for the division at Green Bay said that the crew was unaware of the accident until it was reported by a passenger.

The car was headed west on GG and was on an upward slope to the railway tracks. The Soo Line tracks at that point, about half a mile east of Highway 47 and 44 miles south of Neenah. The car struck the left side of the southbound train near the rear of the locomotive and was demolished.

'Egg and I' Author Succumbs at 49

Seattle — (AP) — Mrs. Betty MacDonald, 49, whose first writing effort, "The Egg and I," became an overnight best seller, 13 years ago, died last night after being ill many months. She had cancer.

"The Egg and I," a story of life on a chicken ranch in the rugged backwoods country of the Olympic peninsula, quickly became a best seller, was turned into a motion picture and was the basis for the "Ma and Pa Kettle" movie series.

Mrs. MacDonald later added to her list of fictional successes with such books as "The Plague and I," "Anybody Can Do Anything," "Onions in the Stew," "Nancy and Plum," and the children's "Mrs. Piggle-wiggle" series.

Report East Germans Have 400 MIG Jets

Bonn — (AP) — The Russian-trained air force of communist East Germany has 400 Soviet MIG jet fighters, a political party press service said today.

Western air force officials declined to comment in detail on the report from Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian democratic party, but informed officers said the figures "appeared to be too high."

The press service said the red air force has 11,000 men and a total of 800 planes. Observers said any MIGs involved probably would be MIGs, an obsolete version of the Korean-war fighter which Russia has disposed of in Egypt, Syria and other countries.

The East German people's army of 90,000 men contains two army corps, each of two motorized and one armored division, plus one reserve armored division, the report said.

Two Young People Lost Their lives when their car hit the side of a Chicago and North Western passenger streamliner at the County Trunk GG crossing south of Neenah shortly before 8 o'clock this morning. Killed were Clarence A. Baxter, 20, Poynette, and Virginia Geer, 19, daughter of an Oshkosh advertising executive. They were on their way to a church youth rally at Stevens Point. Wreckage of the car is shown above. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Part of Seaway Will Bear Wiley's Name

Washington — (AP) — A bit of high level controversy was cut short Friday when it was announced after a White House conference that a portion of the St. Lawrence Seaway will be named in honor of Sen. Alexander Wiley.

Lewis B. Castle, administrator of the St. Lawrence Seaway Development corporation, settled the issue by announcing that the Long Sault Canal will be renamed the Wiley-Dondero canal.

The action will honor Wiley and former Rep. George A. Dondero of Michigan for their efforts in getting the seaway authorized, built through Congress in 1954.

A Crucifix, Shown at Left, probably saved the life of Elias Alvarado, 17, who was shot Thursday night in the lobby of a Los Angeles theater by an usher. He and two companions were charged with suspicion of robbery after witnesses said they tried to snatch a woman's purse in the theater. The usher's .32 caliber slug lodged at the top center of the crucifix. The impact broke the skin on Alvarado's chest. Doctors said he would have been killed had the bullet struck a fraction of an inch to either side. (AP Wirephoto)

Squabbles Over Party Financing

The squabble between the national chairmen of the Republican and Democratic parties over the announcement of the plan to raise more campaign money from the rank and file of voters is too silly for serious consideration. The subject of their argument, however, is anything but silly.

Paul M. Butler, Democratic chairman, said in a TV interview that "an important development" in political financing would be announced by outside sources in a few weeks. This brought from Republican Chairman Meade Alcorn the charge of a "shocking breach of faith" by merely mentioning the plan.

Arguments between party chairmen are nothing new to the public and might be permitted to go on without special notice if they do not threaten important public interest. In this instance the public should be concerned. There has been no detailed announcement of the plan as yet but it is indicated that it concerns the methods to be used in raising party funds. This is a matter of vital public interest.

As political parties now are financed most of the money comes in the form of large contributions from the wealthy members. This practice seems to give the voters of means the greatest claim on the services of the elected candidates. To the extent that this appearance prevails, the parties and in fact the entire political structure are weakened.

In 1956 a disagreement between Chairman Butler and the then Republican chairman, Leonard W. Hall, ended a similar plan to distribute the financing over a wider area. At that time it was proposed that four members of each party serve on a committee to sponsor an advertising campaign urging voters to contribute to the party of their choice. The plan was dropped when Butler charged that Hall was sabotaging the program and Hall said Butler had killed the proposal by announcing it prematurely.

The party chairmen in both instances undoubtedly were acting to protect each party's rights. However, the plan is important as a means of insuring good government and should be considered in that light.

The method now used to finance campaigns probably is one of the most questionable practices in the national political structure. In this age of wealthy labor unions, well financed farm organizations and huge private corporations neither political parties nor candidates need be without ample financing. In fact such interested groups are so eager to have the "right" people elected that it has been necessary to raise barriers against their contributions. Nevertheless, pressure groups always find ways of getting financial help to their candidates.

The proposed agreement between the parties might not succeed in placing party financing at the grass roots immediately, but it would focus attention on the subject and lead to a much wider understanding of the problem. If the people once understood how much they would gain by controlling the finances as well as the votes of their own parties they would find a way to bring it about. The easiest way to get control of a political party is to buy it and the people can own their parties for a very few dollars each.

Letter From a Humanitarian

Edward F. Thode, writing in the People's Forum today, identifies himself as a humanitarian and an internationalist. He does not define these terms, but it is apparent from the text of his letter what they mean to him.

Mr. Thode, as a scientist, is not going to let his soaring thoughts be limited "according to the mere geographical or political accident of national boundaries." The problem he fails to face is what constitutes a "political accident." Are we to consider, for instance, the enslavement of almost half the world's population by a brutal dictatorship simply a jam that silly human beings have gotten themselves into, and not worth the notice or at least the serious consideration of the great intellects of the world of science? When Hungarians died in the streets in their heroic battle for freedom, did the humanitarians of the world look the other way because of their lack of interest in "political accidents?"

Nothing could be more dangerous to decent human society, to "humanitarianism" and in the end to the concept of free scientific inquiry than a breed of scientists that considers itself above politics, above considering the grave questions of morality and survival that face the human race, above fighting for decency and freedom and justice wherever and whenever it is necessary to fight for them. The feeling of some scientists today that they should be permitted to pursue their work in a political and social vacuum, into which the distractions of political argumentation are never permitted to intrude, is the first step toward creating such a breed.

People's Forum

Accuses Post-Crescent of Provincialism

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Evidently the principal concern of the writer of your recent editorial about possible overemphasis on scientific education was that a wider appreciation of the scientific view would promote the cause of internationalism.

Somehow, my upbringing and education, in the public schools and in a great technical university, has made me a humanitarian. I am motivated by a desire to learn as much as I can about the Plan of the Grand Architect of the Universe and by a desire to contribute to the welfare of my brothers of the human race, both near and far. Such philosophy, which I believe is shared by a large proportion of scientists, makes no limitation according to the mere geographical or political accident of national boundaries, any more than it admits of any prejudice because of color of skin or shape of nose!

Your writer clucks disapprovingly about the "apostate" German rocket scientists. It is not clear whether he disapproves of them for having originally worked for Hitler or for leaving Germany after her defeat for the comfortable haven of these shores. He forgets that they were under duress in both cases and in both cases made the best bargain possible to advance their principal scientific and humanitarian interest of learning more about rocketry and preparing for man's last geometric frontier—space!

And, what is wrong about permitting scientists from the mainland of China to attend our scientific meetings? Nothing secret is ever discussed at general meetings of scientific societies; our defense would not be imperilled by their presence. On the other hand, the Chinese scientists who might attend could possibly learn things which would ease the suffering of the teeming millions of our fellow creatures who live west of Hong Kong. Improved methods of agriculture to ward off famine, methods of limiting family size to reduce the population pressure which creates so much misery and degradation, these are but two of the benefits the Chinese might gain from visitation of their mainland scientists to our country and to our public scientific conferences.

Surely I am not overbalanced with scientific training to make such assertions! As far as I know, one of the marks of the liberally educated man is breadth of view, not narrow provincialism. May I suggest review of I Corinthians 13? It might help one understand these devilish scientists!

What Others are Saying

Population Estimates Surprising

From the State Division of Industrial Development

Wisconsin seems to be growing faster than most of us have realized. The bureau of the census has published an estimate, as of July 1956, of 3,768,000. About 5,000 of these were members of the armed forces stationed in the state. Judging from recent experience, we should have 80,000 to 90,000 more people as this is written.

The latest estimates by census indicate that Wisconsin's civilian population grew at almost as high a rate as the nation's in the 1950-1956 period. In more colorful language, it seems that Wisconsin is no longer losing a significant number of its people, especially its young people, to other states. Generally, this is taken to mean that employment opportunities are being created at a rate sufficient to hold the population.

World Has No Confidence in Russia's Good Faith

Feels Soviet Proposals are Propaganda

BY ELMO C. WILSON
Director, World Poll

The simple appeal of Russia's proposal to suspend test explosions of H-bombs seems to have many all over the world mentally on the ropes. They have a strong desire to go along with the Russian proposals.

At the same time they express skepticism about Russia's trustworthiness. Thus, they would prefer to have some guarantees of Russian compliance of the proposals. A system of international inspection with teeth in it would resolve this dilemma.

From half to three-quarters of the public in thirteen nations assert that the Russians should be taken up on their offer to halt tests.

"Russia has proposed suspending H-bomb tests for a two-year period. Do you think this Russian proposal should be accepted by the other nations or not?"

Reds Not Trusted

At the same time, from one-third to two-thirds in the various nations are convinced that the Russians will go right on exploding bombs even if their proposal is accepted. And numbers ranging up to a high of 45 per cent (Japan) are so unsure of Soviet intentions that they will not hazard a firm "yes" or "no" on this question.

"If we did accept the proposal, do you think the Russians would keep their promise to stop their own H-bomb explosions?"

Solution Welcomed

Thus, people are evidently torn between a basic distrust of Soviet intentions and the impulse to leave no stone unturned that could bring an end to the atom arms race. They would welcome a solution by which the agreement to suspend such explosions would be accompanied by some sort of safeguard such as international inspection.

Widespread fear that H-bomb explosions are now damaging the health of unborn generations, as reported in an earlier World-Poll survey, serves as an additional spur to suspend tests.

The number who believe the Russians can be trusted to keep a promise is less than one in three in all countries. But in some, notably Japan and France, support for approval seems to stem from a willingness to take a chance on the Russians. People are not sure what will happen, but they want to accept the Soviet offer.

Educated Skeptical

Men and women, young and old, people with little schooling and university graduates, all vote in about equal proportions for acceptance of the Soviet bid to end bomb tests. Women are more often among the unsure. But, by and large, there are few marked differences from one group to another on this question. One such difference occurs among the better educated.

Although in all countries this group votes just as heartily as others for acceptance, in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Italy and Japan they are more convinced than the less educated that the Russians will not keep faith.

Statesmen looking to public opinion for guidance on the question of suspending bomb tests will find no easy answers here. The dilemma remains unresolved in the public mind, as it is in world councils — the longing to end the arms race and the need to believe in the possibility of peaceful coexistence struggling against the hard barrier of fear and distrust.

The New York Herald Tribune World-Poll is conducted by International Research Associates, the world-wide survey organization.

Next week's World-Poll will analyze this question: How much control should government exercise over big business?

Rail Man's Hand Signal May be No Compliment

Norfolk, Va. — Railroads have modernized their signals and communications systems with some pretty fancy electronic gadgets. But railroad men still hang on to the old hand signal — for personal conversations as well as moving a train.

The Seaboard Air Line Railroad good naturedly discloses that it has discovered a large family of "home-made" hand signals in use along with those in the line's official list.

Like the bottle of catsup in the dining car galley window — the traditional warning that a company bigwig is aboard — many are designed to tip off a colleague to look sharp.

Here are some of them — all tipoffs on the approach of a superintendent:

Brushing hair back — bald headed superintendent around.

Raising arm high, palm down — tall superintendent.

Sawing off arm with hand — short superintendent.

Doing hand in yak-yak motion — inquisitive superintendent.

The railroaders depart from the book, too, to improvise time-saving signals for purely business purposes on local freights. The Seaboard listed these:

Tap the back of one hand with the other — engineer back up.

Tap it and make a roof with hands — back up on company loading siding.

Tap it, make a roof, cut throat with hand, hold up fist four times — back up in the house track, cut off four cars.

Hold nose with one hand, tap head with other — hot box on the head end; touch waist — it's in the middle; touch back — it's on the tail end.

One superintendent reported that he was on the scene but failed to see what must have been one of the most expressive signal communications in the Seaboard's history. He became aware of it when an engineer, slightly ruffled, swung down from the cab and headed back for the caboose.

"Where are you going?" asked the superintendent.

"Back to the caboose for a minute," the engineer replied. "That brakeman ain't going to get away with what he just called me with that lantern."

One veteran jailbird says a fellow hardly gets to learn the warden's name these days before the supreme court comes along and turns him out in the cold again.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

In Time of War, American leaders have acknowledged again and again their debt to faith in God. None documented this better than Abraham Lincoln, whose own writings had a Biblical ring. It was Lincoln who said: "Without the assistance of that Divine Being... I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail."

"The purposes of the Almighty are perfect, and must prevail, though we erring mortals may fail to accurately perceive them in advance... Meanwhile we must work earnestly in the best light He gives us, trusting that so working still conduces to the great ends He ordains."

"Take all of this book (the Bible) upon reason that you can, and the balance on faith, and you will live and die a happier and better man." (AP Newsfeatures)

Few Cities Place Rein on Activity Of Boat Operators

Report Facts in Survey Made for Committee Studying Proposals for State-Wide System of Regulation

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Only a handful of Wisconsin municipalities have yet acted to require municipal pleasure boat registrations for a fee, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities reports in a survey made for a state-wide system of boat registration and regulation.

There has been a considerable worry among boat owners about conflicting and duplicating registration requirements upon boats, but the League survey shows that only seven cities and three villages now have local licensing ordinances.

List Communities

They are Kenosha, Madison, Rhinelander, Stoughton, Superior, Watertown, Wisconsin Dells, and Elkhart Lake, Fontana and Strum.

Some of the backing in boating circles for a state regulatory and licensing system is inspired by the hope that a state boating regulation code would head off further legislation by individual communities. Conflicting local license ordinances would be a barrier to the freedom of movement of boat owners, it has been pointed out. Thousands of boat owners use trailers to transport their craft and like to move from one lake to another during the boating season.

Boater Conduct

There are some municipalities that have ordinances regulating the use of boats and the conduct of boaters, without requiring registration or licensing. The League survey showed. Most of them attempt to control reckless operation and speeding.

A state licensing system will be one of the major topics of inquiry of the new state study commission, together with the possibility of using such revenues and possibly others for a program of navigation improvement for the benefit of pleasure boaters.

Boats are now liable for personal property taxation by the localities where they are kept.

Award Honors Game Manager

Fund Established in Memory of Former Conservation Official

Madison—A service award fund has been established by members of the state conservation department to honor the memory of the late W. F. Grimmer, the man who did more than any other to develop the state's game management program.

The fund is sustained by contributions of members of the state game division staff and others, most of whom were trained as apprentices by the pioneer department officer who was the first effective advocate of scientific game management in Wisconsin.

Propagation Program
Grimmer was the head of the state game division for about 30 years before his death several years ago, and launched the first game propagation program for the state on a primitive pheasant farm in Door county which was the predecessor of the giant production plant now functioning at Poyette.

The fund will be used to make annual awards for distinguished service in the state game division.

The Warden Speaks

Ice Fishing Continues Fair on Lakes in Area

BY CHUCK WRANOSKY
Outagamie County Game Warden

Ice fishing the past week has been only fair. The big lake is producing some walleye catches but the fishing in general has been spotty.

The best catches have been taken off the east shore. Lake Poygan and the smaller or lakes are producing some nice perch bags. New London and Stephenville fishing has been fair but should pick up as the winter progresses.

The spearing season for sturgeon opens today. Spearing will be allowed only on Lake Winnebago and Little Lake Butte des Morts to the upper dam at Appleton. The spearing season will continue to March 1.

Question — When is it legal to cut a hole for sturgeon spearing?

Answer — The law provides that a hole larger than 12 inches may be cut 24 hours prior to the opening of sturgeon season.

Sturgeon Tag
Question — If I spear a sturgeon what must I do?

Answer — Immediately lock your sturgeon tag near the tail of the fish and exhibit the fish within 24 hours to conservation department personnel at an official sturgeon registration station.

Question — What is the size limit for sturgeon?

Answer — A legal fish must be at least 40 inches in length.

Question — What is the sturgeon bag limit this year?

Answer — The bag limit is one per fisherman.

Only One Tipup
Question — May other people's tags be in the shanty?

Answer — No. Only tags of the people actually spearing may be in the fish shanty.

Question — May I ice fish while spearing?

Answer — Yes. A person can spear and ice fish at the same time but only one tipup is allowed if you are spearing.

Question — Can a youngster under 16 years of age spear sturgeon?

Answer — Yes.

Question — What are the hours for spearing sturgeon?

Answer — The spearing hours are from sunrise to sunset. The game law violator is a thief.

SAFETY TIPS FOR FEEDING BIRDS

WHEN PUTTING OUT FEED FOR GAME BIRDS, SELECT THE CLEARINGS WHERE PREDATORS CANNOT SNEAK UPON THEIR INTENDED VICTIMS, UNSEEN. FEED MAY BE SCATTERED ON THE GROUND—BUT IF THERE'S SNOW, PUT CORN OR GRAIN IN FEEDERS ABOVE SNOW, OR UNDER SHEDS.

No Time Left for Hunting; Man Can Only Reflect on Season Just Ended

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

This was the time for reflection.

His guns had been carefully cleaned, wiped dry and now gleamed with their light coat of oil as they stood erect in the wall cabinet and the man closed his eyes and dreamed in the warmth of his living room.

There was no time left for hunting—the seasons had run their course and now it was over—but he had plenty of memories to last until next October and there would be fishing in between to fill the gap.

It had started on a gray October morning when the fog left icy beads on his forehead and the mallards flashed skyward like shadowy night riders. It ended as a snow-swept January afternoon when the bunnies huddled deep along the fence rows and the beagle bawled for one more turn through the timber toppings.

Hold a Man

In between were a half-dozen jaunts after pheasants, several partridge hunting trips into Marinette county, a 9-day deer season, trapping, fox hunting and countless side trips which sometimes, but not always, resulted in a mixed bag.

The man dozed and dreamed. What, he thought, is a person to do in these dragging days until April? Ice fishing? Sure! He'd do plenty of that but it would lack the excitement of the hunt or the anticipation involved in flicking a fly or a plug into rushing, fish-rich water. That could hold a man—make his blood run faster and put a tremor in his hand.

He'd go back to the woods, he knew, for he couldn't stay away. He'd see the sunlight flash upon the trees and he'd kneel to inspect the bank where otter crawled out, scampered in the snow and slid back into the water.

He'd go back to the woods, he knew, for he couldn't stay away. He'd see the sunlight flash upon the trees and he'd kneel to inspect the bank where otter crawled out, scampered in the snow and slid back into the water.

Deer Stand
There would be the two-by-two track of a mink twisting along a crooked stream and he'd bend low to see where it disappeared beneath the shell ice.

He'd watch a hawk circle in the sky, hear the screech of an owl and he'd feel the freshness of the air burning in his nostrils when he breathed deep.

He'd go back to his deer stand. There, in the silence of the woods, he would feel again the creeping cold and the numbness and the urge to stamp his feet. And he'd see the buck, head high and cautious, moving down the trail silent as a whisper.

And still the man dozed. He heard the raucous cackle of a rooster pecking over the corn tops and his stomach jumped when he thought of the grouse which exploded out of the brush.

His nostrils quivered as he smelled again the odor of cordite and pine and swamp water and ripening corn.

The man dozed and dreamed his dreams and February wrapped itself around his living room and the guns gleamed in the gun rack.

State's 'House of Labor' Appears Much Divided

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The Wisconsin "house of labor", as the orators of the unions like to refer to their movement, is far from the happy family that might have been imagined by outsiders noting the announcements of many months ago about a consolidation of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO unions.

Wyngaard

Some of the public statements of the two key men in Wisconsin union affairs, George Haberman of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor and Charles Schultz of the Wisconsin CIO, resemble more the angry debate of foes than of prospective partners in a merged labor movement.

Actually, the surprising rancor shown in the public prints lately is an important sign. So keen is the rivalry within the family that some of the pressure has exploded publicly.

As the situation now stands, there is very little hope for a voluntary fusion of the two organizations and there is more and more speculation about a compulsory consolidation by the direction of the AFL-CIO headquarters through the personal intervention of George Meany, the head of the parent consolidation.

How it goes

It had been widely assumed that the merger, when it came, would put Haberman of the WSFL in the saddle as head of the joint front.

Haberman's organization had numerical superiority, which would have been reflected in superior voting strength in any joint convention — if he could depend upon the loyalty of his own following.

But the potent Teamsters union now is outside the federation. There always was a minority against Haberman within the WSFL, in spite of his apparently easy reelection over many years. Now with the Teamsters immobilized, there are some doubts in informed quarters that Haberman has a dependable majority to back his aspiration to become the captain of a merged labor federation in the state.

That doesn't mean, however, that his rival Schultz of the CIO would necessarily defeat Haberman in such a showdown.

Schultz also has some nominal followers who are dubious about his leadership. Schultz, moreover, could expect the Haberman cohorts to fight to the end against a Schultz election.

Taking everything into account, observers of labor politics are guessing that the merger, if it comes, will come through the command of national headquarters, and that an election of a new president, when it comes, will turn aside both Haberman and Schultz for another man, likely one without a controversial record and very likely a member of an AFL union.

POLITICAL EFFECT

Essentially, of course, these family difficulties of union labor are private affairs. Yet they take on a public context because of the increasingly political orientation of the unions.

Organized labor is likely to occupy a more prominent place in the formal election campaigns in Wisconsin this year than ever before — having tested its campaign machinery with prestigious effect in the special election for senator last summer.

The fact, however, that it is torn internally by a deadly serious struggle for control and that the struggle shows no sign of early resolution can only suggest a weakness on its political front as the campaign year advances. In that probability the conservative forces against which the labor leadership of the state is aligned politically may draw some solace in a year that is otherwise unpromising.

Brown County Sheriff Faces Court as Drunk

San Francisco — All six-foot-one and 268 pounds came up fighting when the man asleep at the counter of an all-night cafe was aroused by the police club of Patrolman William Wilson.

The man identified himself as Sheriff Arley Skenandore of Brown county, Wis. He said he had been on the town with a man who once played football for the Green Bay Packers, and mistakenly thought when awakened that somebody was trying to roll him for the $500 he carried.

Patrolman Wilson booked the man at City prison as drunk and resisting an officer. Released on $60 bail, Skenandore, a full-blooded Indian, said he had been on his way to Merced, Calif., to pick up a prisoner and take him to Green Bay.

Later in the day Sheriff Skenandore appeared before Municipal Judge Charles Perry and explained that he had been startled when awakened.

The judge suspended a 10-day sentence on the charge of intoxication and dismissed the accusation of resisting an officer.

The judge remarked that it was an "unfortunate" incident and said he was "sorry the sheriff was caused embarrassment."

In Good Taste Name Use If Widow Remarries

BY EMILY POST
Dear Mrs. Post: It was quite a surprise to me to read your answer to a middle-aged widow in your column recently regarding the wording of her wedding invitations. It has always been my understanding—and I am sure you have said it many times—that, correctly, a widow continues to use her husband's name. Is this no longer true, or can it be that I have misunderstood?

Answer: It is still best taste for the widow of John Smith to call herself Mrs. John Smith in her private life, and particularly in connection with matters concerning her family. It seems to me, however, the objection to "Mrs." followed by a woman's Christian name is removed on the occasion of her own remarriage, which certainly is that of Jane Smith, and necessarily the title Mrs.

Initials on Chest
Dear Mrs. Post: My son has recently become engaged and for a present, my husband and I are giving his fiancée a chest of sterling silver. The chest has a metal plate mounted on the top for engraving. Will you please tell me how this should be marked? Should it be marked with my son's fiancée's initials alone, or since the silver is really for them both, would a combination of their first initials and my son's last initial in the center (which will also be her initial after they are married) be correct?

Answer: Have the chest marked with the initials that will be hers when she is married to your son.

Use of Titles
Dear Mrs. Post: The other day I had occasion to write a letter to a minister who holds several doctor's degrees. I addressed him as The Rev. Dr. John Jones. I was told that it was incorrect to use two titles together and that either one or the other should be used. Will you please tell me what is correct?

Answer: What you have been told is correct. You should have addressed him either as Dr. John Jones or the Rev. John Jones.

Your Problems

Pretty Teenager Uses Friend's Brains to Attract Collegian

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I'm 18, better than average looking, and a senior in high school. My brother attends a nearby university. When his roommate saw my picture he started to write to me.

We've been exchanging letters for five months. From the start I realized he was way above me, intellectually. I actually had to read his letters with a dictionary in my lap.

My best girl friend is a brain. I asked her to help me write letters that would make him sit up and take notice. It worked like a charm because the boy is real impressed.

Next month my brother is bringing the fellow home to meet me. Shall I confess, introduce him to my smart girl friends and then get lost—or what?—LOW IQ

Too bad you can't borrow your girl friend's brains for a few days. Since this is impossible, limp along with your own and make no apologies. Let's hope your person-to-person personality is so charming and pleasant that it won't matter when you tell him the truth.

Our Children
Patri Points Up Value of Good Mail Subscriptions
BY ANGELO PATRI
There is something about getting a bit of mail addressed to himself that sets a child up in his own estimation. He has been recognized as the important person he has long known himself to be and it gives him an inner warmth that makes his eyes shine, his step firmer and his manner more authoritative.

Nothing is wrong about that and there is a good deal of what is good in it. We older people could make that bit of personal mail more meaningful to him if we took a little thought about it.

We could give him a subscription to a good magazine like the American Boy, its sister magazine for the Girl Scouts would be fine for a daughter.

Keep your fingers crossed and hope that this fellow has a good sense of humor and will think the stunt was more hilarious than deceitful. It's your only chance.

DEAR READERS: Many of you have written for information on the procedure for adopting children from European countries. The American Red Cross suggests that interested parties write to the agency which appeals to them.

Jewish: European Jewish Children's Aid, Inc., 15 Park Row, New York 7, N. Y.
Lutheran: National Lutheran Council, 50 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

DEAR ANN: I have a small problem which is more irritating than serious. Perhaps you can help settle it.

Our daughter lives a good distance from school. My husband drives her every morning since it's on his way to work. Two young acquaintances come to our house every morning plant themselves in the living room and wait for a ride.

Mornings at our house are always frantic, because I work and there are so many details which must be attended to. It's disconcerting to have two strangers in the living room, observing our every move.

We've had to wait for these girls several times because if they miss the ride, they'd be late for school, and we'd feel responsible.

We are now in this community and the girls are in my daughter's room at school. I don't want to make trouble as she's just getting acquainted. But this program has become a real headache—NO SOLUTION.

Apparently these girls have not been invited to be daily passengers so don't be bashful about setting the record straight.

Your daughter should explain that mornings are always hectic and you would prefer not to have guests in the living room when you are trying to get organized for the day.

Tell them too, that you leave at a certain time in the morning and that if they want a ride they've got to be in front of the house (not inside) or hoof it.

Women Gain More Ph.D.'s In Scientific Fields At State University

Women have been treading in men's footsteps ever since the beginning of time, but now the female of the species has quickened her pace in the higher echelons of man's academic domain, a check of advanced graduate study at the University of Wisconsin has revealed.

A survey of recipients of the 365 Ph.D. degrees—the highest of academic degrees—during 1956-57 at Wisconsin, which consistently leads all other American colleges and universities in the number of Ph.D.'s granted annually, reveals that women received nearly 15 per cent of them—39 to be exact.

Invasion Male Domain
The women got their doctorates in 18 different major areas of study, half of them in fields of science which are usually considered the primary domain of the male.

Last year 16 women earned their Wisconsin Ph.D.'s in these male domains: 3 in chemistry, 2 in economics, 1 in medical microbiology, 1 in oncology, 1 in physiology, 1 in bacteriology, 5 in biochemistry, 1 in entomology, and 1 in genetics.

The 23 other women who received doctorates at Wisconsin last year gained them in fields now almost conceded to women, such as home economics, or in fields in which women have long since made their weight (mental) felt, such as: 7 in English, 1 in history, 1 in psychology, 2 in Spanish, 2 in speech, 2 in zoology, 3 in home economics, 4 in education, and 1 in education and physical education.

During the past year, there were 36 other fields ranging from botany across many physical and social science fields into engineering in which 326 men earned their Ph.D. at Wisconsin, but in which no women completed graduate studies leading to the doctoral degree.

The Free Wee King show will highlight the Thursday and Friday grandstand programs, and the Mariners quartet will headline the Saturday and Sunday shows.

The Wisconsin Breeders and Harness Horse association will return horse racing to the fair with a 2-year-old trot and pace on Sunday afternoon. Motorcycle races will be conducted Saturday afternoon.

Lesson in English

BY W. L. GORDON

Words often misused: Do not say, "That's all the faster my car will go." Say, "That's AS FAST AS my car will go."

Often mispronounced: Globular. Pronounce the "o" as in "rob," not as in "globe."

Often misspelled: Skull (bone of the head). Skull (oar, boat).

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: minatory, threatening, menacing. "The antagonists shook minatory fists at each other."

CONSCIENTIOUSLY YOURS

The prescription your doctor writes may call for numerous ingredients

These must be compounded precisely — measured, weighed, powdered, sometimes heated, sometimes chilled and ultimately blended into a medicine

Your pharmacist must be exactly right with his grams, cubic centimeters, percentages and other scientific guageposts

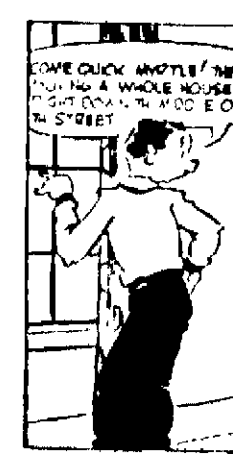

During the process, to the exclusion of all else, we are in every way — conscientiously your servant

Hortonville — Hortonville
High school's marauding basketball team clinched its second consecutive undisputed Little Nine conference cage title Friday night, defeating Winneconne, 60-47.

The Polar Bears, now unbeaten on the season with 16 straight wins and Wisconsin's second-ranked "Little 16" team, snatched a 14-5 first quarter lead and were in command from then on. They received solid 3-man scoring balance from Jim Steffen, with 19 points, Bob Broehm (17) and Dennis Sommers (16).

Bryce Schmude and Jerry Reetz led Winneconne with 13 apiece. The Polar Bears, gaining revenge for their only conference setback of the 1956-57 campaign, swished 16 of 21 free throw attempts. Winneconne dropped 15 of 25.

Denmark Cops, 40-36
Reedsville — Denmark High, which has clinched solo possession of second place in the Little Nine conference basketball race, capped its eleventh contest in 12 circuit starts here Friday night, defeating Reedsville, 40-36.

The Vikings were on top, 23-15, at halftime of the low-scoring game which saw both teams conservative with shots against zone defenses. Roger Lange hit eight points to lead Denmark, Rolfe Zipperer counted 10 for the Panthers who were on top 33-30 at one point in the fourth quarter.

Affeldt Notches 27
Shiocton — Shiocton High school broke loose in the fourth quarter to overcome Bear Creek, 68-58, in a basketball game played here Friday night. It was an even game going into the final period when the Chiefs exploded to put the game on ice. Charlie Schwandt was the winners' ace with 20 points. Gary Affeldt, of the losers, was the game's high man with 27 points.

Black, Coe's No. 2 scorer behind Pursell connected on 10 of 12 field goal attempts—mainly drive shots and almost entirely from close range. The fast-moving 6-1 senior, finished with 22 points to top both squads.

Pursell, a demon on the backboards and a strong defensive player, found the nets with seven of 13 fielders and all five of his free throw tries for 19 points.

Bill Wood chucked in 21 points, the second high total of his college career, to pace the hosts. The bespectacled senior guard bulletied six of 18 free shots and nine of 12 free throws. Blust, a strong addition to the Lawrence forefront, tallied 13. The 6-2 youngster suffered a slight ankle sprain and left the game for a short stretch when the score was last tied (14-all) and his absence might have had a lot to do with the Lawrence demise.

Defensed Well
Weber equalled his best previous scoring effort this season, with nine tallies. Appleton sophomore Jack Close, who sparked while counting 21 points in his first varsity game at Chicago Tuesday, scored his only points of the evening Friday on a fielder in the first couple minutes. The 6-3 performer was defended well, with Pursell drawing the assignment much of the time, and Jack missed 12 straight shots before fouling out with 9-15 left in the game.

Lawrence hit on just 29 per cent of its 68 shots from the floor. Coe poured in 30 of 69 for 43 per cent, including a torrid 18 for 37 in the first half.

Both clubs made 67 per cent of their free throw tries. Lawrence connected on 24 of 36, the visitors slipped home 20 of 30 or 36 holes with 131s.

After Coe had taken the lead for good midway through the first 20 minutes, the winners gradually increased their margin for a 46-30 halftime spread. Continuing to do a superior job on the boards and sifting through the Lawrence defense with ease, the lawns moved in a 56-36 edge with 14:30 to go in the game. They then made 10 straight points in a period of about 45 minutes for a gaping 66-38 bulge.

At this point substitutes started taking over for both schools. Lawrence outscored Coe, 28-14, the west of the way. Whistle-conscious officials Forrest Perkins and Edward Spicer called 50 fouls in the game, 27 on each club.

Politicians Think Constitution Is Hard to Change

Democrats Shift Policy From Era When FDR Was President

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—It's strange how the process by which the constitution can be amended seems suddenly to become cumbersome and dilatory to those politicians who wish to circumvent it either by passing a law or by pressuring the supreme court to change its decisions.

Thus the Democrats now are saying it would take too long to get a constitutional amendment adopted which would provide a method whereby the vice president can serve temporarily in case of the disability of a president.

But the Democrats did not feel that way in 1933, when they put through both houses of congress the repeal of the 18th amendment on prohibition and when three-fourths of the states ratified the new 21st amendment by December—less than 10 months in all. Similarly the 17th amendment, providing for the election of senators by popular vote, took less than 18 months for ratification. The 19th amendment on woman's suffrage was ratified in about 14 months. Approval of the 20th, or "lame duck," amendment came 11 months after submission by congress.

The lesson is plain—when public opinion is united, it is easy to get a constitutional amendment passed quickly. There is every reason to believe that, if by two-thirds vote of the senate and house of representatives a new amendment on presidential disability were submitted to the states, it could be adopted before the year 1958 comes to a close.

Controversial Issues

When controversial issues are involved, it is true that it takes longer to get a constitutional amendment adopted. The late president Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, in his nationwide radio broadcast on March 9, 1937—during the fight over ways and means of influencing decisions of the supreme court by "packing" it with additional justices whom the president would appoint—declined the talk of doing anything to reform the court by a constitutional amendment. He said:

"It would take months or years to get substantial agreement upon the type and language of an amendment. It would take months and years thereafter to get a two-thirds majority in favor of that amendment in both houses of the congress. Then would come the long course of ratification by three-fourths of all the states. No amendment which any powerful economic interests or the leaders of any powerful political party have had reason to oppose has ever been ratified within anything like a reasonable time."

Roosevelt expressed his discouragement, too, over what happens even when a new constitutional amendment on a complex subject is finally adopted. He added this observation:

"And remember one thing more. Even if an amendment were passed, and even if in the years to come it were to be ratified, its meaning would depend upon the kind of justices who would be sitting on the supreme court bench. An amendment, like the rest of the constitution, is what the justices say it is rather than what its framers or you might hope it is."

Note of Despair

This note of despair about our constitution uttered by the man who has been canonized by the Democratic party is repeated these days by Democratic leaders. But some of the same objections apply also to any law that may be passed by congress. If, for instance, a statute were enacted setting up a commission to remove the president when he seemed to be disabled and to decide later whether or not he had recovered from his illness, such a broad discretionary power would surely be challenged in the courts. Every executive action involving property would become a basis for a lawsuit by the aggrieved party. The whole country would be in doubt as to the legality of action by a temporary president and months or years might elapse before the supreme court ruled on the validity of the executive acts performed by a vice president.

The constitution is clear in specifying that congress may provide the line of succession when there is a vacancy in the office of both the presidency and the vice presidency. But the constitution does not say what may be done in the interim when a president is temporarily disabled and then recovers his health after a period of "inability." It should be easy to clear up all doubts by putting through promptly a constitutional amendment on that point.

Sparring for Issue
But the Democrats are sparring for an issue. They want to pass a law and would welcome an Eisenhower veto, because they think this would give them an advantage in the forthcoming campaign when they plan anyway to make the president's

Brothers Try Burglary, Find Police Waiting

A pair of would-be burglars were seen breaking into the South Side Athletic club, 1726 S. Lawrence street, about 2:30 this morning.

Police arrived, the pair fled to their car and found themselves in the hands of patrol men.

The men are brothers—one from Appleton and a 17-year-old New London youth. They told police they broke into the club because they needed money.

Police said the brothers entered the club by forcing a door on the southeast side of the building with a short pry bar. They forced open an inner door to the barroom, but police arrived before they had a chance to look for money.

A neighbor called police when he saw the pair prowling around the clubhouse.

Five Youths Haled Into Court for Beer Party in Parked Car

Five youths, all Appleton High school students, appeared in juvenile court before Judge Stanley A. Staudt Friday on charges of drinking beer in a parked car in the city Jan. 25.

One of the youths was released when Judge Staudt ruled that he was not involved in the beer party. All but one of the youths are 17.

Judge Staudt adjourned the cases until Feb. 21 to permit investigation by the Appleton Apostolate and Lutheran Welfare agencies.

Illness a matter of campaign discussion. The Democrats could, of course, then charge the Republicans with refusing to provide a way to permit the vice president to take over temporarily for the president. Yet the public interest would be better served now by the agreement of both parties on a constitutional amendment. It could be adopted in record time this year, since the language would probably not be controversial and only an amendment of that kind could command a two-thirds vote of both houses anyhow.

The constitution is sufficiently flexible and up-to-date for those who really want to use it and for those who have an overwhelming public opinion behind their proposals.

Icy Blast Hits, Chills Fox Cities

Icy fingers of winter clutched the state today sending temperatures below zero and holding them well below the freezing point.

The warmest official temperature reported in the state Friday was a 15 above at Madison. With a 13 reading at the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company's weather post, the Fox Cities could be considered one of the warmest spots in the state.

Overnight the Fox Cities recorded a five below reading for a low. The coldest overnight reading was 12 below at Superior, but the mercury continued to sag after dawn and an early reading of 15 below was reported.

Bright sun failed to help the temperature situation in the Fox Cities. By 10:30 the mercury stood at two above. Cold chilled most of the nation today.

Temperatures fell below freezing across the north from the Atlantic to Idaho and into the south as far as Georgia in the east and Texas in the west. Florida received a fresh frigid blast.

The largest overnight temperature drops occurred east of the Mississippi river and south of the Ohio river where readings were 10 to nearly 30 degrees lower than a day ago.

In Friday's Post-Crescent the name was incorrectly reported as Tigorsch.

Correction

A story on the death of Mrs. Hattie Burmeister, Oakland, Calif., a former Appleton resident, in Friday's Appleton Post-Crescent, incorrectly gave her age as 74 because the Wichmann Funeral home was not informed. Instead she was born Dec. 22, 1892, making her age 65. Those listed as sisters are half sisters.
